

Jacob Portman is a normal everyday 16 year old, or so he thought. Jacob has spent his life listening to his grandfather's stories about World War II, fighting "monsters", and living in an orphanage full of children who could fly, be invisible, and even make fire from their own hands. You see, Jacob's grandfather lived in this orphanage until he was old enough to enlist in the army. Jacob believed most of his grandfather's stories were make believe. That is until his grandfather's death when Jacob sees a "monster" of his own.
